Training and Support for Water Quality Monitoring in Africa

Support for Africa

With the support of Irish Aid, the GEMS/Water Capacity Development Centre in Cork, Ireland is embarking on a new programme aimed at assisting countries in Africa: (i) to monitor ambient water quality for Sustainable Development Goal 6, and (ii) to establish or expand water quality monitoring programmes that support assessments of national, regional and global water quality. Support will also be provided through training and expert advice in response to specific needs.

Phase I

Assessment of current water quality monitoring capability and associated capacity development needs

Phase II

Development of University accredited training courses for delivery in traditional workshop format or distance learning format on-line
