TWITTER

This month, UN Environment's Twitter account recorded a 2% increase in followers from 547,242 to 555,991. The continued slow growth of the platform, as well as failure of new platform features to spark resurgent interest in Twitter have brought more modest audience growth. To engage followers UN Environment has continued to create engaging and impactful posts with compelling visuals to attract and capture the attention of the audience. This has been done through short and engaging campaigns, where UN Environment has asked its audience participate in social media activities. Additionally, this month, the increase in followers is attributed to activity related to the 22nd Conference of the Parties to the UNFCCC in Marrakesh. UN Environment engaged followers with short videos from experts at Marrakesh as well as engaging & informative content from deliberations at the meeting. This change in strategy of coverage of events such as the Marrakesh climate conference was well received by audiences. UN Environment's Twitter audience is also likely to engage with video content calling for action on the environment and climate change, with the most recent being the #LoveAir campaign on air quality.

What worked:

- +Short video interviews from climate experts in Marrakesh
- + News on environment and wildlife crime
- +News and campaigns on endangered species
- +#WildForLife posts
- +Appreciation of international non UN observer days

What did not work:

- + Text-only Tweets
- + Images of conference daises

FACEBOOK

This month, UN Environment's Facebook account recorded a 5% increase in followers bringing the total number of fans from 295,311. This continued increase in numbers is mainly attributed to the sharing of short informative posts and video on environmental news and stories of impact. Continued implementation of the new approach featuring more interactive and impactful posts with news and videos as well as participation in campaigns and crowdsourcing activities to amplify awareness of current environmental issues continue to amplify user engagement.

This month, creative uses of the platform to share content from the 22nd Conference of the Parties to the UNFCCC in Marrakesh contributed to the growth of UN Environment's Facebook audience. Development of highly sharable, non event-related content will be key to continue such growth. As Facebook's algorithm changes reward sharing others' content, UN Environment will work to share content that can be tied back to programmatic successes.

What worked:

- +Short video posts from experts in Marrakesh
- +News on environment, wildlife crime, climate change and the Paris Agreement
- +Engaging video & animated infographics sharing impact stories with a human angle & briefly informative facts and figures.

What did not work:

- + Posts without strong accompanying images
- + News reporting that does not add value through the most sharable aspects of news/reports
- + Updates on programmatic work that lack a "human" side
