The African elephant range States continue to work towards protecting, restoring and managing the African elephant populations and their habitat across their range. With the help of the AEF many projects are underway in the States and the threatened existence to elephants posed by poaching, illegal trade, human elephant conflicts, local overpopulation and loss and fragmentation can be prevented, reduced and ultimately, eradicated. Illegal killings, illegal trade, increasing human population and habitat loss are areas that the AEF is working to address, and in which range states are cooperatively delivering results to ensure the future of the world's most charismatic, majestic, and largest terrestrial mammal, the African elephant, Loxodonta africana.
