

CiP Information Systems – Lessons learned

- This forum provides a valuable framework to raise awareness, to facilitate discussion between the various stakeholders on best practices and to inspire evolution.
- We welcome it as ongoing voluntary program under SAICM and in this respect support having a framework concept.
- We recognize the needs of stakeholders for information implemented in a balanced approach that at the same time recognizes and respects the important concept of intellectual property and protection of confidential information.

CiP Information Systems – Lessons learned

- “One size does not fit” all but there are common cross-sector key element that can be extracted and serve as a toolbox to inform existing CiP systems and/or to develop new CiP systems.
- Such a toolbox could be shared with other sectors and value chains to encourage awareness, feedback and further activities.
- To facilitate success, an essential element of such a toolbox could be “business cases” developed by industry, highlighting the benefits and added value of an improved flow of information for key players in the value chain.
