DIRECTORY OF INSTITUTIONS AND RESEARCHERS INVOLVED IN MEDITERRANEAN UNDERWATER ARCHAEOLOGY

INTRODUCTION

This Directory has been compiled by the Mediterranean Archaeology Programme of The Mediterranean Institute, Foundation for International Studies, University of Malta.

Its purpose is to provide a handy and up-dated list of centres, institutes, and other institutions, as well as individual researchers involved in the study, exploration and preservation of the submarine archaeological heritage of the Mediterranean sea. A few free-lance co-operatives and voluntary associations have been included after checking their credentials.

For the purpose of this Directory the Mediterranean has been taken to mean strictly the Mediterranean sea (i.e. to the exclusion of the Black Sea) and the countries bordering on the same sea. Thus countries, like Portugal and Jordan, which do not have a Mediterranean coastline have been excluded. On the other hand, the Directory includes institutions and individuals hailing from countries outside the Mediterranean (e.g. Germany, U.K., and U.S.A.) but whose research, wholly or in part, is directed to the exploration and study of Mediterranean underwater archaeology.

Although perhaps somewhat out-moded, the adjective 'underwater' has been preferred to others like 'marine', 'submarine' and 'nautical' in order not to exclude archaeological activity connected with lakes and rivers taking place in Mediterranean countries.

The project started off literally from nothing. From the very outset it was decided that the best way to search for and compile the required information would be by means of questionnaires. A first questionnaire was therefore printed (copy attached) for mailing to relevant institutions. The problem at that stage was that, to our knowledge, there existed no mailing list on the subject and we are grateful to M. Jeudy de Grissac for the first list of thirteen addresses. A few more addresses were soon after kindly provided by Prof. Piero Gianfrotta from Rome University, probably the most qualified and professional underwater archaeologist in Italy. An extremely helpful list was sent to us on request by Prof. George F. Bass of Texas A. & M. University who is so well known as to need no introduction. For the institutions and researchers from countries of the central and western Mediterranean we are greatly indebted to Dr. Jean Pierre Massué, Secretary General of PACT, Conseil de l'Europe, for the most extensive list of addresses.

We immediately realized the need of drawing up and mailing a second questionnaire to be addressed to individual researchers connected with Mediterranean underwater archaeology. This time we kept it as simple as possible requesting the most basic and necessary information. We sent copies of both questionnaires to all available addresses with a request to forward to other institutions and individuals known to be involved in this sector. In this respect, the most helpful institution has proved to be the European University Centre for the Sensibilization to the Cultural Heritage of Barcelona which diffused the questionnaires widely throughout Spain.

During a conference on "Medieval Ships and the Birth of Technological Societies" held at the Foundation for International Studies, Malta, in February 1989 the opportunity was taken to address copies of the questionnaires accompanied by covering letters to the participants. The response was disappointingly low: only two participants bothered to return the forms.

As the filled-in questionnaires were returned the information contained therein was edited and progressively entered in the computer by means of Word Perfect 5 word processing software. In this respect we are grateful to Dr Aldo Chircop, whose appointment as Director of The Mediterranean Institute proved providential for the organization on computer of this Directory. Thanks are also due to Mrs MaryRose Vella for typing in the received information, for patiently inserting corrections and producing the printouts.

It should be pointed out that returned questionnaires continued to trickle in the mail till the end of July and the last entry was made on 1st August 1989.

There is reason to be satisfied with what the project has managed to achieve. Almost 80 pages of addresses and useful information on specializations and interests of both researchers and research institutions have been drawn up and brought together in just over a year. Unfortunately, some addressees did not care to respond. The Directory, in fact, contains also the names and addresses of some institutions and researchers who failed to send back the questionnaires in time. We apologize to those that have inadvertently been left out, and we kindly ask them to make themselves known to us. We equally apologize for including any institutions and researchers who might have preferred to remain unlisted.

As it is intended to keep the Directory up-to-date for distribution and, ideally, for publication every three or four years, the Mediterranean Archaeology Programme will be grateful for any information which is absent in the present edition.

STRUCTURE OF DIRECTORY

The Directory has been so designed as to provide easy and rapid access to the desired information without the need to refer to an index. All the information has been catalogued under both the country of origin of the researcher and under the Mediterranean country where the research is actually conducted. All countries are entered in alphabetical order.

Within each country the list of Institutions connected with Mediterranean underwater archaeology is given first, followed by that of individual researchers. Both lists are given in alphabetical order. For the rest the Directory is self-explanatory.

The information in each record has been compiled from two separate questionnaires (one for institutions and one for individual researchers) mailed out to and returned to us by the institutions and individuals concerned. The completeness and correctness of the information in the Directory has to a great extent depended on the quality and substance of the information submitted.

Responsibility for the accuracy of the information contained herein can, therefore, only be assumed to a limited extent. The Directory cannot be considered in any way exhaustive.
